FIGHT IN ELEVATOR, STABBED

BRIBE FOR LINEHAN

LINEHAN ON BRIBE OFFER

"The Boston Elevated offered me $3,500 for my vote."

"The Boston & Worcester raised the bid to five thousand dollars."

"One Boston Senator changed his vote allowing them the privilege."

Senator Declares the Boston Elevated Offered Him $3,500 for His Vote, and the Boston & Worcester Raised the Bid to $5,000, but He Refused to Sell Out for $20,000.

Senator Frank J. Linehan this afternoon confirms the published statement that he was approached by representatives of two different railway systems and offered bribes to vote the way they wanted in the State Legislature.

A great sensation has been caused by Senator Linehan's statement made in a speech in South Boston last night.

Senator Linehan refuses to give the name of the bribers.

The declaration of Senator Linehan will be called to the attention of the District Attorney's office.

Senator Linehan will be asked to go to the office of the District Attorney and name the representatives of the Boston Elevated Railway Company and the Boston & Worcester Railway Company who approached him.

He will be expected to name the criminals. Under the law any person knowing the names of persons guilty of offering bribes is required to reveal their identity. A failure to do this is other crimes in contemplated making its person so refusing an accessory to that crime after the fact.

The officials of both of the railway companies named by Senator Linehan positively deny that he was ever approached with offers of bribes.

Absolutely False—Butler.

William M. Butler, president of the Boston & Worcester Street Railway Company, says:

"I know nothing more about this statement of Senator Linehan other than it is absolutely false. The Boston & Worcester Company has never had any relations whatever with Mr. Linehan. I wish it emphatically stated that there is no truth whatever in his statement.

"If I remember correctly, the Boston & Worcester Railway Company was not especially interested in the Joint Track bill. I have only been president of the company since February, but I have been its counsel for years and would certainly recall any effort on the part of the company for this bill. I would have been obliged to appear before the legislative committees if we had been in favor of this bill.

J. Harrey White, representative of the Boston Elevated Railway Company, said to-day:

"Absolutely all that I know about the alleged transaction is what appears in the morning papers. No one, so far as I can discover, has ever heard of such transaction."

President Bancroft, of the Boston Elevated Railway Company, refused to be interviewed, and said that whatever would be given out would be given out by Mr. White. He refused to discuss it personally.

Senator James F. Shaw, former president of the Boston & Worcester Street Railway Company, when asked what he had to say regarding this statement of Linehan, threw back his head and laughed, and said: "Well, that's a good one." He refused to discuss it officially.

DULUTH IS MENACED BY FOREST FIRES

HUNDREDS OF LIVES ARE IMPERILLED BY FLAMES RAGING IN NORTHWEST.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

DULUTH, Minn., Sept. 10.—The forest fires which have been raging in this vicinity have at last almost reached the city. Fires, having broken out this afternoon in the suburb of Lester Park. Reports have been received here that hundreds of campers on Isle Royale, in Lake Superior, are in danger of being burned to death in the flames that are now sweeping through the thick timber on the island.

The car shops of the Wisconsin & Michigan Railroad at Pendtipe have been destroyed, entailing a loss of $20,000, and the town itself is threatened with destruction.

Many farmhouses have been burned near Coleman and Gnver, and reports from along the "Soo" Railroad state that immense property loss is threatened if heavy rains do not set in soon.

Large District Ablaze.

BAYVIEW, Mich., Sept. 10.—The forest fires which have been devastating the northern portion of the southern peninsula, and which had shown signs of subsiding, have been fanned into renewed fury to-day by a strong southwest wind. Great anxiety is felt for the safety of Rose City, Au Gres, the Summer resort at Otsego Lake and Standish, Arenac County. Almost the entire country between Pinconning and Roscommon is ablaze.

Massachusetts to name the men who committed these crimes and to help bring them to justice.

THE LAW.

Chapter 210, Section 6, Revised Statutes of Massachusetts:

Whoever corruptly gives, offers or promises to a legislative, executive, judicial, county or municipal officer, after his election or appointment, either before or after he has qualified or has taken his seat, any gift or gratuity whatever, with intent to influence his act, vote, opinion, decision or judgment upon any matter, question, cause or proceeding which may be then pending, or which may by law come or be brought before him in his official capacity, or as a consideration for any speech, work or service in connection therewith, shall be punished by imprisonment in the State Prison for not more than five years or by a fine of not more than $5,000 and imprisonment in jail for not more than one year.

THREE HEADS FALL IN FERRY DEPARTMENT

The Chief Engineer, Who Was Blamed by Men for Recent Strike, Suspended.

The axe fell three times in the ferry division of the street department, once in the public buildings department and once among the street sweeping employes today.

The men suspended, or practically discharged, are:

Chief Engineer Lect Sampson of the ferry division, salary $2,000; Engineer William S. Alexander of ferry division, salary $1,320; Foreman Martin S. Kane of ferry division, salary $1,400; Engineer John R. Walsh of public buildings department, salary $1,600; Street Sweeper Jeremiah Sullivan, pay $2 a day.

The ferry division suspensions were ordered by Superintendent of Streets Guy C. Emerson, who investigated the ferry division after the recent strike by ferrymen. He says he found that most of the strikers placed the blame for ferry conditions upon Chief Engineer Sampson.

He intimated, too, that the axe might find elsewhere in the ferry division. It seems that when he was returning to the city over the ferry he tendered a half-dollar in payment for toll and half the change offered him. He says that he asked when his change was and was told that the toll-taker thought the balance was meant for a tip. Superintendent Emerson thinks the tip-taking habit must be acute to warrant such expectations.

The discharge of Engineer John R. Walsh of the Public Buildings Department was ordered by Superintendent George W. Morrison of that department. Walsh worked in the City Hall.

SOUTH END GROUNDS, Boston, Sept. 10.—Before the Doves departed on the same train with the Quaker crowd en route to Shenztown to continue the series they wanted to put over just one more win and take the odd game, which would give them the advantage when they line up again in a bo the midst of the Phillies' supporters.

The Doves had outplayed the visitors in every game, losing one because of other reasons, and there was little doubt but that they would windup in royal style.

Two teams showed the same style of strength from top to bottom, which made the games between them all the more uncertain and the scores in the recent conquests showed this.

The fine finish made by the Doves yesterday took considerable starch out of the Phillies as they thought they were sure winners and they were inclined to be awake in anticipation of any more sudden spurts of Joe Kelley's men working the unexpected on them.

Kelley had the good strong arm pitchers in Flaherty and Lindaman and between the pair the Doves had a chance and every appearance of coming out the right way.

Billy Kane may work equally well off with Corridon, McQuillan and Moren to select from.

LINEHAN'S STORY OF BRIBERY PLOT

By Frank J. Linehan.

The interests of the Boston Elevated Road were there in the Senate and the friends of the Boston & Worcester were there also, and when it came to a fight, after a long debate, it was a tie, 17 to 17. The president and myself did not vote. You can imagine then what hauling and pulling there was to get my vote. My vote would settle the matter either way I voted. The representatives of the Boston Elevated Railway Company came to me and offered me $3,500 if I would vote against allowing the Boston & Worcester coming on to their tracks. Then the other fellows came, and they bid higher for me, and the Boston & Worcester representatives offered me $5,000.

My friends, I assure you that I was in debt way up to there (pointing to his shoulders), but their money had no influence, and I told them that neither could get my vote for $20,000, and I would not vote for either corporation.

You all, perhaps, have read in the papers of the result. One Boston Senator changed his vote and voted with the Boston & Worcester road, allowing them the privilege.

LINEHAN REFUSES TO NAME BRIBERS

AN AMERICAN reporter asked Senator Linehan to-day to name the men who tried to bribe him.

"Who offered the money, Senator?" was asked.

"I'll not say," replied the Senator, "but I'll have plenty to say before my campaign is over."

Q.—Will you say who the Boston Senator was who changed his vote?"

"No, not just now at least, but I'll name not only one but more than one before the caucus. There were some Senators who didn't need to change their votes. They could be depended upon all the time to stay with the grabbers and against the people. The others I'll name, and I won't be unreasonable either. Last night's speech was tame to what will come before the session is over, and up to the primaries I'll deal with cold facts and all about the influence that corporations exerted that year in the Senate.

"All I'll say now is that the story in the Globe of my last night's speech is true, with the exception that I did not say that one particular Boston Senator changed his vote and thus allowed the Boston & Worcester a privilege. Just follow me around to-morrow night and after, and you'll get hot stuff right from the shoulder.

NAME THE MAN, MR. LINEHAN!

Who was the representative of the Boston Elevated Railroad Company who offered you thirty-five hundred dollars for your vote, Mr. Linehan?

Who was the representative of the Boston & Worcester Railroad who raised the bid to five thousand dollars?

Both of those acts were crimes.

It is your duty as a citizen and as a public official of the State of

BRAKEMAN WANTS $40,000 FOR INJURY

The Union Freight Railroad of Boston has been sued in Middlesex County for $40,000 damages by Edward W. Briggs, a former brakeman for the corporation, who claims that he was injured and permanently disabled while working for the road on Atlantic avenue about a year ago.

DRAPER COMPANY SUED FOR $15,000

Suit for $15,000 has been entered in the Superior Court in Cambridge against the Draper Company of Hopedale by William H. Nugent of Hopkinton, a former employe. Nugent declares that on August 5, 1906, while unloading a freight car, he was severely injured. He alleges that the injury was due to the fact that the freight car on which he was working was defective.

ASK FUND FOR NEW CUSTOM HOUSE SITE

Boston business men want a custom house in this city which shall be adequate. This sentiment was expressed at the meeting of the directors of the Merchants' Association in Young's Hotel yesterday. President James J. Storrow presided. It was recommended that Congress be asked for a large appropriation for a site.

FIVE MEN TRAPPED IN DEATH TANK

NEW YORK, L. I., 10.—One man was scalded to death and four others painfully burned to-day when an exhaust pipe suddenly began pumping steam into a tank in which four men were stringing wires at the power house of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company at Kent avenue and Rush street, Williamsburg. John Boynton, the most fatally injured, lives with his wife at No. 94 Beverly avenue.

25,000 WILL MARCH IN HOLY NAME PARADE

The centennial of the founding of the Holy Name society in the archdiocese of Boston will be observed in this city October 28. November 1 with elaborate exercises, including a big street parade on Sunday, November 1, in which more than 25,000 members of the organization will participate. Major John J. Leonard, secretary-treasurer of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters, has been appointed chief marshal of the parade and he is now at work lining up the staff. Very Rev. George A. Patterson, vicar-general, will have full charge of arrangements for the observance.

Umpire—Connolly.

Special to the Boston American.

AMERICAN LEAGUE BASEBALL GROUNDS, WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—They started the last game between the Red Sox and Senators early in order that the Boston men could catch a train for their home town. They play a double-header with the New York Highlanders tomorrow. Umpire Connolly announced the batteries at 3 o'clock.

Both teams were anxious to make quick work of each other this afternoon, and they put in pitchers that waste no time in posing, but keep the ball streaking across the plate without any lost motion. The series stood one game apiece when the fun began and both teams were willing to bet they would win.

The Red Sox were glad that Philadelphia lost yesterday, as it keeps the Athletics close to them in the standing. They hope to pass Connie Mack's men in the series with the New York tailenders. The latter are pretty well discouraged and ought to prove easy meat for the Bostons.

Although the weather was cloudy and the game began an hour earlier than usual there was a good crowd out when Umpire Connolly took command.

RAIN AIDS FIGHT ON FOREST FIRES

HIBBING, Mich., Sept. 10.—A steady rain, the first in two weeks, is soaking the brushwood and cuttings which have furnished the most ready fuel for the forest fires on the range. The rain, it is hoped, will end the fire terror.

NICHOLS DENIES HE DEMANDED $25

Benjamin P. Nichols of the Republican City Committee of Chelsea denies that he demanded $25 when the papers of Robert Luce, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, were filed. Nichols said: "I simply told the man who filed the papers that it was customary for candidates to contribute something toward the expenses of the committee in running the ballot carriers."

SOUL KISSES AND SUN BATHS SPARED FROM PROFANE GAZE

TRUCE IN SUN WORSHIPPERS CASE DISAPPOINTS CURIOUS CROWD IN COURT.

A private agreement between lawyers to-day prevents, for the present at least, the court probing of the Mazdaznan society, or the Sun Worshippers. The attorneys for Mrs. Mabelle M. Dutton of Dorchester, and those of Mrs. Ellen M. Shaw of Lowell, agreed to-day to withdraw the injunction case from disposition by Judge Jabez Fox in the Equity session of the Superior Court.

The courtroom was filled with a crowd of curious and deeply interested people who had come to hear testimony of the "soul kiss" of the Sun Worshippers, the sun baths nuded and the races over the dewy grass as described by residents of Lowell who claim to have witnessed many of the exercises of the Mazdaznans.

When the revelations promised by Attorney Jordan were not forthcoming for the present owing to the truce between the attorneys, the crowds which filed out of the courtroom were plainly keenly disappointed.

While Mrs. Shaw will be free to sell her personal property in Lowell and pass the papers in the sale of her late estate, she cannot use the money pending the decision on the petition to appoint a trustee for her property which has been brought in East Cambridge Probate Court by Mrs. Dutton.

Mrs. Shaw, one of the defendants in the injunction proceedings withdrawn to-day; Mrs. Adelia A. Mallet, and Dr. and Mrs. Hilton, the latter the high priestess of the Mazdaznans, from Lowell, were in court at 10 o'clock to-day.

Leaders in Court.

Mrs. Shaw, dressed in splendid black raiment from head to foot, looked her forty of her sixty-eight years as she swept to her seat in the well-filled courtroom. A large picture hat completed the effectiveness of her attire. Mrs. Mallet, her Montreal friend, and Mrs. Hilton, the priestess, were clad in snowy white.

When Attorney Arthur Klitredge, associated with Robert A. Jordan as counsel for Mrs. Dutton, declared that Attorneys Melntire & Wilson, of Lowell, attorneys for Mrs. Shaw, would agree to be responsible for the disposition of all of her property and the sale pending the decision in Cambridge as to the necessity of having a conservator appointed for Mrs. Shaw, the Mazdaznan followers looked their triumph.

As they strode from the court they plainly showed that they believed they had scored a triumph.

Attorney William H. Wilson, following the abrupt termination of the injunction case, said:

"The sale of the personal property of Mrs. Shaw is to take place next week. Papers for the sale of her house will now be passed.

Defends Mrs. Shaw.

"Mrs. Shaw is going to travel to different parts of the country in the interest of the Mazdaznan Society. She has been misunderstood, and so has this society. Mrs. Shaw never took those sun baths on her lawn, as has been stated, and many other things said about her and the Mazdaznans are equally false.

"The Mazdaznans are a peaceable, law-abiding people. They will wait while their own children not sold their husbands.

"Mrs. Shaw has never read this book, 'The Inner Circle,' which is said to express the tenets of the religion. She is a well-poised woman, and one entirely competent to manage her money and property without assistance. I know that she never intended to sell her property to give the proceeds to the Mazdaznans."

The attorneys for Mrs. Dutton are now bending all of their attention toward the really important suit of the litigation with the Mazdaznans, that of asking the Probate Court of Middlesex county for a conservator for Mrs. Shaw's property on the ground of her advanced age and feeble-mindedness.

To Take Charge of Sale.

It was decided at the conference held by attorneys of both sides to-day before court opened that the case to-day would decide nothing as to the real merits in the dispute. Attorney Jordan has declared: "I have evidence that will show that the Mazdaznans are seeking weak-minded people who have money."

He added before the case was disposed of to-day: "Evidence which will be secured against the Mazdaznans, or Sun Worshippers, will be placed in the hands of the District Attorney of Middlesex county."

The withdrawal of the injunction suit was with the understanding, Attorney Klitredge declared in court, that Attorneys McIntire and Wilson of Lowell would be in charge of the sale of Mrs. Shaw's personal property.

BOY WHO KILLED SISTER RELEASED

EXETER, N. H., Sept. 10.—Allen H. Hall, the fourteen-year-old boy who last Saturday shot and killed his sister, aged sixteen years, with a double-barreled shotgun at North Danville, has been discharged from custody and allowed to go to his home. After a hearing held behind closed doors the court decided that while the boy acted carelessly it was not sufficient to warrant it being called a criminal act and ordered the boy discharged.

GRANDSON GETS $30,000.

Judge Braley, in the Supreme Court today, approved of the terms of a compromise agreement to settle the contest over the will of the late Hilliard Goodale of Dorchester. By the compromise Henry Hilliard Goodale, grandson, gets $30,000 in addition to the trust fund of $1,000 left to him under the will.

"SUN WORSHIPPERS" IN COURT TO-DAY

Mrs. Hilton, head of the Mazdaznan cult, also known as the "high priestess," was on hand as a spectator when injunction proceedings were scheduled to be heard to restrain Mrs. Shaw from transferring her property to the Mazdaznans or "Sun Worshippers." By agreement of counsel the case was withdrawn. The women were sketched in court to-day by a Boston American staff artist.

MORE PUPILS TURNED FROM THE SCHOOLS

With class rooms in nearly every school badly overcrowded, and with pupils, in some instances, forced to sit in the corridors because there were not desks enough to go around, hundreds of additional school children of Boston had to be turned away from various public schools in the city to-day because of the lack of accommodations.

Forty-two pupils were denied admittance at the Mayhew Primary School in Chambers street.

Twenty-seven were turned away from the Washington Grammar School in Norman Street, West End, making a total of 134 to be denied registration since yesterday.

Twenty-seven were turned away from the Somerset Street School.

Seventy-five were turned away from the High School of Commerce at Worthington street and Fenway, making a total of 276 to be refused admittance.

Every school in the West End and the North End to-day has more pupils than the regulations of the school board permit. The regulations of the board specify that there shall not be more than forty-six pupils for every teacher, but some teachers have from sixty-six to seventy-six.

At the Bowdoin Street Grammar school of which Alonzo Meserve is head master, sixty-eight pupils in excess of the number provided by the school board regulations are being carried.

"So far we have been able to accommodate all who have applied for admission," said Mr. Meserve, "but we have more than we can properly handle."

At the Shaw Primary and Kindergarten School, Pinckney and Anderson streets, Miss A. H. Preston, the teacher in charge, said:

"We have many more pupils in our kindergarten and primary grades than we can handle. By utilizing every inch of room we have been able to keep all the children in school, but we cannot give them proper accommodations. In each primary grade there are at least ten more pupils than the school board regulations assign us. Each kindergarten room has at least twenty more.

"Conditions are generally bad to-day at the Phillips School. Every room is overcrowded and classes are disturbed by workmen who are finishing repairs.

1,500 COLORED MASONS MARCH HUB STREETS

Fifteen hundred colored Masons paraded Boston streets to-day, led by Chief Marshal Major George W. Braxton. The parade was in honor of the centenary of the establishment of the Prince Hall Grand Lodge, No. 416 Tremont street, the first grand lodge of colored Masons in the United States.

The parade attracted much attention as it marched through the principal downtown streets of the city. The marchers were reviewed by Acting Governor Draper at the State House and by Mayor Hibbard at City Hall. The officers of the Grand Lodge saw the paraders march by at Park square, where a large reviewing stand had been assembled.

Following the disbanding of the parade the centennial exercises were held in Symphony Hall. Acting Governor Draper was invited to deliver the address of welcome in behalf of the Commonwealth, and the centennial oration was then delivered by Right Worshipful Past Grand Master William L. Reed.

Tomorrow morning a centennial memorial communication and exemplification, under the direction of Grand Lecturer Ulysses G. Powell will be held in Parker Memorial Hall. On Saturday a Masonic outing and field day will be held at Point of Pines and on Sunday special exercises will be held in several of the churches.

EARL FOLLOWS MISS MILLS

NEWPORT, Sept. 10.—Monday will be general moving day for the Ogden Millses. They will be at Staatsburg-on-the-Hudson for the Fall season. With them goes the Earl of Granard, who has been with the family since their arrival from England of last month, and he is to remain until October 1, when he returns to England.

As yet there has been no announcement of an engagement, and society seems to have lost interest in the appearance of the Earl and Miss Beatrice Mills.

BURY BABE AS HOME BURNS

SALEM, Sept. 10.—While attending the funeral of their two-year-old child, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Waugh returned home only to find that during their absence it had caught fire and damaged to the extent of $100. The fire started in the kitchen and but for the timely arrival of the apparatus the house would have been a total loss. Mrs. Waugh was almost prostrated when she returned home to find that she was greeted with a double affliction.

INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE NAMES CANDIDATES

Three Congressional and All Boston Senatorial Districts Are Represented.

LIVELY CAMPAIGN ASSURED

The Independence League nomination papers for delegates to conventions and for candidates for public offices have been filed with the election commissioners by John M. Pease, secretary of the Boston City Committee.

Candidates for Congress were named in the three Boston districts, for the State Senate in all of the strictly Boston districts and in all but one of the Boston representative districts.

Jeremiah F. Kelleher of Ward 7, who will make the League fight for Congress in the Ninth District, left the Boston Democracy several years ago because he had become tired of its factional fighting and lack of constructive policy, but he has since taken an interest in politics as an independent way. He is the vice-chairman of the Democratic City Committee. He is employed in the corpse department at Siegel's.

In the Tenth District Edward J. Kilroe of Ward 17 will make a strenuous campaign for Congress. He is one of the best known business men of Roxbury, conducting a large real estate office on Dudley street. He has taken a large interest in the movements for the improvement of Roxbury and is highly respected for his public spirit.

Edwin M. White, the League candidate for Congress in the Eleventh District, has his office and home on Hemenway street in the Back Bay. His occupation is that of real estate conveyancer and property title expert. Mr. White will make his candidacy with vigor.

With Boston politicians of the old parties fighting for the councilor nomination in the Third District, the Independence League forces have united on Augustus Sawyer of Cambridge. Mr. Sawyer is the editor of the Wage Earner, the only labor journal. The Senatorial and Representative nominees in the various districts will have a meeting in a few days and map out plans for conducting a strong campaign.

Delegates to the State and county conventions were named in every ward and for the councilor conventions in the wards of the Seventh and Fourth Districts.

The city is gaily decorated. The British gunboat Cumbrer Gibraltar has arrived here to participate in the reception.

COMEDY AND MUSIC HOLD STAGE CENTRE

Gay Fantasies at Theatres Please Host of Early Season Patrons.

UNUSUALLY FINE BILLS

The theatres offer irresistible inducements to amusement seekers this week. It is seldom that a dramatic season opens with so many strong attractions.

"The Merry Widow" continues to captivate at the Tremont Theatre, and Miss Lina Abarbanel and Donald Brian, as the heroine and hero respectively, have secured popular and artistic triumphs.

"Alice in Wonderland," presented by a big company of young and pretty girls at Wonderland, is rapidly drawing to a close.

"The Gay Musician" at the Hollis Street Theatre is a comic opera that appeals to all who have a fondness for the artistic on the stage.

"The World Beaters" at the Palace give a bright, rapid and lively burlesque show. The chorus girls are very good looking and have vivacity to spare.

Vaudeville at the Hub.

By adopting vaudeville, the Hub Theatre has greatly enlarged the scope of its entertainment and gives a program which is replete with pleasing and entertainment by a high degree of merit.

In "Commencement Days" at the Colonial Theatre the folk authors have caught the spirit of the light incidents that college life in a way that appeals to the public heart.

"Pat" White and his Gaiety Girls are offering at the Howard Athenæum what deserves attention. It is a drawing attraction with pretty girls, fine specialties and laughable skits.

"Rajah, 10" is the kind of a play that lives for years on the stage because of merit. Few Western productions equal the one now being played at the Bowdoin Square by a strong company.

The stage performance at Norumbega Park this week is one of the best of the season and, together with the many other attractions at this resort, proves a magnificent attraction.

The free bus, ideal picnic grounds and many other features explain why Lexington Park is becoming the favorite and distributing seekers of amusement.

The Revere Beach Carnival continues during the last two weeks of the season at this resort for the million. The dates are September 7 to September 19. Waterfilling in the afternoon and fireworks and illumination at night are among the events of interest.

"The Spell of Time," is a strong play and as presented by Florence Bindley and company, at the Grand, is worthy one as about all that a lover of stirring stage productions could ask.

Amateurs will make Columbia Theatre patrons laugh this week. Their skits will be, also, the New Century Girls in burlesque and a specialty show that is sure to please.

The Star Theatre is giving a moving picture and illustrated song show which is hard to beat.

"Love Waltz" Here.

"The Love Waltz" at Keith's has proven a delight. It is a clever, tuneful production, pretty, and well sung and mounted.

John Craig as "Mephisto" gives a very interesting interpretation of the most discussed stage role of the day. The Castle Square Theatre is giving the first production of the play in Boston.

Sam Bernard has made another big hit in his comical role in "Nearly a Hero," and visitors to the Park are greeting with it is a strong production and filling the Majestic Theatre.

The crowd which goes daily to Nantasket Point on the steamer going between that resort and Boston shows that the people appreciate the low rates and the excellent sailing.

Henry W. Savage announces that his version of "The Devil" is the only authentic version of the play presented in this country. He will soon present the play here with Henry Dixey in the leading role.

Captain Edward W. Dixon has an army of patrons who can testify to the pleasure derived from a trip with daintily served King Philip. There is a matron aboard.

BRYAN'S SLAP AT LABOR IN U. S. RECORDS

He Put Workingman on the Rack When They Asked for Living Wages.

PROXY ATTEMPT TO EVADE

Out of the writhings of Democratic campaign managers yesterday under the indignation of union labor voters over William Jennings Bryan's designation of laboring men as "public beggars" came T. H. Kuhn, Democratic candidate for Congress from the Indianapolis district, attempting rescue.

He declared that William Randolph Hearst had twisted Mr. Bryan's statement, perverting a speech once made in Congress. Mr. Bryan himself, unable to give unqualified denial, owing to the proof of his insult to labor which is in the hands of Mr. Hearst and Independence party leaders, instigated Mr. Kuhn's attempt to evade the issue and mislead the public.

No one knows better than Mr. Bryan that Mr. Hearst knew from what he was quoting when, in his Labor Day speech at Davenport, Ia., he told how Mr. Bryan placed the "public beggar" brand on the foreheads of honest toilers.

Document Puts Bryan on Record.

Mr. Hearst read, in the course of his speech, the sworn affidavit of two of the laboring men who heard Mr. Bryan's denunciation from his own lips. He had in his possession long extracts from the printed official report of the Ways and Means committee of Congress when, on September 18, 1894, the question of a protective tariff on glass was discussed. It records the presence in the committee room at the National Capital of the men who heard Mr. Bryan denounce labor. It records Mr. Bryan's presence as a Congressman from Nebraska, and through a long series of questions shows that he was the most hostile of the cross-examiners.

On the very day that Mr. Hearst made this speech, Charles Bryant, the glass worker, who formerly lived in Anderson, Ind., sat with a correspondent of the AMERICAN in his present home at Clarksburg, Va., and dictated a fresh and more detailed affidavit regarding the "public beggar" incident of 1894. He swore to it before Notary Public J. O. T. Tidler.

Affidavit Shows What Bryan Did.

Here is Mr. Bryant's latest contribution to Mr. Bryan's real feelings toward labor:

State of West Virginia,
County of Harrison.

I, Charles Bryant, a citizen of Coffeyville, Montgomery County, Kansas, now a resident of Clarksburg, West Virginia, and a glass worker by occupation, being duly sworn, depose and say:

That in the month of September, in the year of 1894, I was appointed by John P. Eberhardt, president of Local Assembly 300, Knights of Labor, as one of a committee to appear before the Ways and Means Committee of Congress, that then had charge of the Wilson bill, the duty of said committee being to use their efforts to have the Ways and Means Committee modify the reduction, as contemplated by them, of the tariff on window glass.

In due time we were given a hearing, and after the adjournment of the committee we stood around in groups talking with different members of Congress. I noticed Mr. William Jennings Bryan talking to some of our members, and stepped to his side just in time to hear him say: "Do you realize that you are public beggars."

"The answer was made by some one, "We do not consider it begging to ask for protection against the importation of foreign made goods."

Mr. Bryan then said: "You are nevertheless public beggars."

With this he impolitely left us.

CHARLES BRYANT.

Taken, subscribed and sworn to before me this seventh day of September, 1903.

J. O. T. TIDLER,
Notary Public.

Harrison County, West Virginia.

BRYAN AND HASKELL SHOULD REPLY IF THEY CAN EXPLAIN

Thomas F. Gamble of Providence, a leading labor man of Rhode Island and president of the Central Federated Trades Unions:

"William B. Hearst's exposure of Bryan and Haskell is the hardest blow yet to the Democratic campaign and makes William Jennings Bryan and his friend Haskell can stand forth and explain satisfactorily it will make a serious difference in the Bryan campaign.

The affidavit of Mr. Campbell is undoubtedly the truth. Now we should hear from Mr. Bryan. Haskell has evidently thrown his hand on the wrong side of this situation. It remains for him to come forward with an explanation, if he has any. I am speaking personally, of course, and not for union labor, and I am willing to allow a reasonable time in which the other side of the controversy may be heard before expressing a direct opinion or offering any advice to my working friends. Mr. Gompers's attitude has been sincere throughout I am sure."

MERE DENIAL BY BRYAN NOT ENOUGH TO BE CONVINCING

Secretary John J. McGarty of Boston Commercial Telegraphers, No. 4:

"An affidavit given by a responsible member of organized labor cannot fail to have weight, and I believe no more denial on the part of Mr. Bryan will be sufficient to nullify its effect. Organized labor is used to cheap talk, what it needs from now on is something more tangible. No slur can be cast at the trades union movement without being resented by it.

"The proofs against Haskell are so complete that his attitude toward organized labor cannot be misunderstood. I do not understand how Bryan can reconcile the trades unionists when they learn the truth about the man who is collecting money for the Democratic campaign. Surely if he has no enough use for his personal friendship with an organizer, if he has any, I am speaking personally, of course, and not for union labor, and I am willing to allow a reasonable time in which the other side of the controversy may be heard before expressing a direct opinion or offering any advice to my working friends. Mr. Gompers's attitude has been sincere throughout I am sure."

TIME WORKINGMEN SHOULD RISE AND RESENT INSULT

Henry M. Donnelly, Providence, R. I., business agent of the New England Moulders' Association:

"The working men of this country are not a lot of beggars, Mr. Bryan. They are the building of the country, and they always defend it in time of war. We beg for nothing, but the working men demand that liberty and equality which is their inherent right under the Constitution of the United States.

"The Democratic party in selecting S. M. Haskell as treasurer of its campaign fund proves to workingmen of this country how little their protestations amounts to. When the S. M. Haskell revelations come out from the Muskogee branch of the Parry, Post and Van Cleave organization characterizing the growth of trades unions as "contemptible fanaticism of organized cussedness" it is time that workingmen rise in their might and resent the insult."

FORTUNATE THAT BRYAN'S WORDS HAVE BEEN EXPOSED NOW

John H. Deeter, a former vice-president of the Portland, Me., Typographical Union:

"If this claim about Bryan is true, I am glad that it has come out. We are not 'public beggars' and never were beggars. We have asked for what we wished when we thought we deserved it and not before. He has no right to call us beggars, and there is no justice in the remark."

Arthur Ingersoll, President of the Portland Typographical Union:

"Bryan's statement that labor men are 'public beggars' is not true and there is no justice in the remark, which was totally uncalled for. If Bryan actually said that we were public beggars, I believe no labor man should vote for him."

Mr. Haskell's statements are also not true, and those who understand organized labor well understand that they are untrue. The labor men are not bound to vote one way, and I hope they will look over the candidates carefully before making a choice."

DEMOCRATIC PARTY FIRST TO OPPRESS THE WORKINGMAN

Charles G. Kidder, ex-president of the L. L. L. and prominent labor leader of Taunton:

"I agree with Mr. Hearst in his speech at Rock Island, Ill. I don't think the Democratic party can be trusted to do anything. It is the first party that I recall which oppressed the workingmen when in 1892 Government troops were sent to break up a strike. I notice that the men who are the top notchers are corporation men. That is true of the party in Massachusetts. As a whole, the representatives are representative of the people, but the men who have headed the ticket have had corporation interests at heart.

"The Republican party stands for nothing, according to its platform, and neither can it be trusted. Both parties have been tried and found wanting.

"In regard to the indorsement of candidates by labor unions I have always opposed it. In the Taunton Central Labor Union I have preached against it.

"As for Gompers, he is a recent convert to trades unionism, and like all converts, he is zealous, perhaps over so. But he must be a man of great ability, else he would not have held the office he has held for many years.

RECORDS SHOW HASKELL AIDED ANTI-UNION PLOT

DENIAL BY BRYAN MANAGER OF CITIZENS' ALLIANCE EXISTENCE IS REFUTED.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Governor C. N. Haskell, Bryan's campaign manager and chief platform builder at Denver, yesterday for the first time denied that the Citizens' Alliance of Muskogee had ever existed. He has been issuing denials regarding his participation in the organization since it became a factor in Oklahoma State politics.

When the matter first came up Mr. Haskell denied that he had been a member of the alliance for more than three days. Then came a new denial in which he declared that he had introduced a resolution to admit union and non-union men. It later developed that the union men were to come in only after they had pledged themselves not to join the Muskogee unions.

Then Mr. Haskell denied that he was unfriendly to organized labor and offered to prove that he had signed the union scale. To complete the work on a building he was constructing under this scale, he secured a special dispensation from the alliance, which he now denies ever existed.

Governor Forgo. Records.

Governor Haskell, when he denied the very existence of the Citizens' Alliance, perhaps forgot that the minutes of the meetings of the secret organization were no longer in the possession of the members, who swore on their honor "to keep secret forever all that may be said or done by the alliance or the identity of its members."

Certified copies of these minutes and facsimiles are now in possession of the New York American and show in many places the active participation of this same Governor Haskell who has protested so much.

The first meeting was called for the avowed purpose of defying organized labor out of Muskogee, and the session was held at the rooms of the Commercial Club on April 20, 1905. The second paragraph of the first page of the minutes reads:

On motion of P. B. Hopkins, C. N. Haskell was elected temporary chairman, and Burt R. Greer temporary secretary."

The minutes then show that Chairman C. N. Haskell of the Alliance appointed a committee of five on constitution and by-laws. Here are the five "fellow citizens" of Muskogee whom Governor Haskell picked out: R. L. Owen, J. F. Welch, C. W. Turner, P. M. Ford and Major Patterson.

Took Oath of Secrecy.

A total of ninety-six business men and citizens applied for membership, among them Mr. Haskell, and a total of $83 was paid in dues.

The oath of secrecy was then administered by F. F. Armen, an Alliance organizer, and here is the way it read, as written in the official minutes of the Alliance, which the Governor of Oklahoma would have you believe did not exist:

"You hereby agree and affirm that you are over eighteen years of age, and that you will abide by the constitution and by laws of this or any other Citizens' Alliance with which you may hereafter become connected; that you agree on your honor to keep secret forever all that may be said or done by the alliance or the identity of its members."

Mr. Haskell in person called the second meeting and the secretary read a list of new applicants for membership. This meeting was held on April 25.

The minutes say that Gus Lubbes nominated C. N. Haskell for permanent president. Mr. Haskell gave reasons why he could not serve, and A. W. Robb was nominated and unanimously elected. Mr. Haskell moved the appointment by the chairman of a committee of three on membership.

The minutes go on to record:

"The motion was made by Mr. Greer that the Citizens' Alliance tender to the contractors of Muskogee financial and moral aid in introducing shelsen at open shop city.

"An amendment was offered by Mr. Haskell as follows:

"All employees of labor in Muskogee are requested to adopt an open shop plan as soon as their present contracts with the unions expire, and the most earnest support and financial aid we rendered such employers of labor."

This Haskell resolution, the minutes show, was adopted at the third meeting of the Alliance, held on April 25.

Haskell's REAL Opinion of Labor

"RESOLVED, that we, the citizens of Muskogee, representing the best interests of our city, do hereby bind ourselves severally that we, and each of us, as citizens of Muskogee, WILL DO ALL IN OUR POWER TO DISCRIMINATE AGAINST ANY AND ALL LABOR UNION MEN who may hold a union or trades assembly card, not for the purpose of injuring these men personally, but TO CHECK THIS CONTEMPTIBLE FANATICISM OF TRADE UNIONISM; and, be it further

"Resolved, that we take steps to induce good, sober and industrious mechanics to come to our city, union or non-union, who will pledge themselves not to join the unions or trades assembly of this city; and that we pledge to such men a preference at all times; also that we invite such men to join our alliance.

(Signed) "C. N. HASKELL."

From resolutions passed by Citizens' Alliance of Muskogee, Oklahoma, of which Chairman Haskell of Democratic National Committee was a prominent member.

DAVIS IS JAILED IN RUSTIN DEATH TANGLE

AMAZING STORY TOLD IN CONNECTION WITH COMPANION'S ARREST.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 10.—The police today locked up in a cell Charles E. Davis, the man whom Mrs. Abbie Rice declared Dr. Frederick Rustin, the Yale athlete and former Massachusetts physician, had secretared to kill him.

The arrest of Davis comes as the latest phase of the amazing story told on the witness stand by Mrs. Rice, in which she explained how Dr. Rustin had tried to get her to kill him. Her nerve had failed her when she had the revolver placed at his heart ready to fire.

Davis is being held technically as a witness in the case. He is the man who is held under the belief of the police that he is the man who killed Dr. Rustin. It is known that Davis, like Dr. Rustin, had wanted to die for months, and that both he and Dr. Rustin had tried in many ways to kill themselves, but had always failed.

The doctor was heavily insured and this money he desired to be turned over to his wife and children. There was a suicide clause in his policies, however, and for this reason he was greatly handicapped in his plans to end his life, and so sought the aid of another to assist him.

Davis has admitted that he made three attempts to end his own life and is the "other man" referred to by Mrs. Rice, the woman in the case, who told of a suicide and murder pact by which Dr. Rustin was to give the "other man" sufficient poison to kill himself and in return the "other man" was to kill Dr. Rustin.

Dramatic Scene in Court.

In a dramatic manner Davis was pointed out among those in the courtroom where the coroner's jury was conducting an investigation into the death of Dr. Rustin. After having told the remarkable story of entering into an agreement with Dr. Rustin to kill him and then commit suicide Mrs. Rice paused a moment and then said referring to Dr. Rustin:

"He told me that he had found another man who would kill him. He was introduced to me as Charlie Davis."

"Do you see the man in this room," she was asked.

Mrs. Rice rose and carefully scanned the faces in the crowded room. Suddenly rushing she pointed her finger at Davis, who was in the rear of the room, and said: "That is the man."

After this sensational climax to her testimony, Davis was called to the stand and admitted his acquaintance with Dr. Rustin. He also admitted that on the night Dr. Rustin was shot the physician had piled him drugs sufficient he believed to cause his death.

He said that he believed Dr. Rustin knew that he wanted to end his life when he gave him the drugs. He said that he was with the physician until the latter put him on a car and that later he had had consciousness and had awakened in the sanitarium of the town and had walked back to his hotel past the home of Dr. Rustin, but had seen nothing of the physician.

Davis could not clearly account for his movements, but explained this by the quantity of morphia and other drugs that had been administered to him by Dr. Rustin. He denied, however, that he had agreed to shoot the physician or that he knew anything of his desire to have his life ended in such a manner.

Fred H. Davis was called to the stand and told of his brother becoming addicted to the morphine habit.

He described how his brother has been afflicted with spells of insanity for more than thirteen years, and that they had come on him periodically since that time. He broke down on the stand and the inquest was brought to an end without either Fred H. Davis or his brother being again called to the stand. The coroner's jury brought in the following:

"We find that the late Frederick Rustin came to his death by a gun shot wound about 5:30 o'clock on Wednesday morning, September 2, at or near his residence, No. 4108 Farnum street.

Fear New Death Attempt.

"We are clearly of the opinion that the shot was fired by some man with the intention of producing death. Also as to the manner or by whom the shot was fired it is our opinion that the evidence is too indefinite to ascertain, but we recommend that the authorities continue to make a thorough investigation as to the conduct of Charles Davis in connection with the circumstances pertaining to the death of Frederick Rustin, and particularly about the time of the shooting."

Davis was arrested as a suspicious person and released on $5,000 bail furnished by his brother. A special session of the police court was arranged so that he would not have to suffer the humility of being locked up, and he was taken directly from the police station to the court.

Although out on bail he is under surveillance and it is feared that he may make another and successful attempt on his life.

Davis is a brother of Fred H. Davis, vice-president of the First National Bank of Omaha, where he was employed, and a brother-in-law of the late Herman Kountze, a member of the banking firm of Kountze Brothers of New York.

NO "CURED" LUNATICS WILL HAVE FREEDOM

Legislature to Take Steps to Protect Public from Crazed Men.

ALIENISTS MAP OUT WORK

Steps are to be taken to have the Massachusetts Legislature provide the public with more protection from attacks by persons released from asylums for the insane. The necessity for some action of this kind is regarded as imperative and to have been proven by the shooting at the State House of Labor Leaders Cohen and Driscoll by a lunatic released from the Danvers institution, and the reported attempt of John Graham, who attacked Governor Roosevelt Coughlin was discharged from the Taunton asylum as "recovered."

The Legislature last year provided for a commission to revise the laws regarding insane persons. Drs. George T. Tuttle, Jr., Henry R. Stedman and F. P. Curtis of the Attorney General's staff were the men appointed. Dr. Tuttle of the McLean Hospital is chairman.

Attorney Curtis said regarding the work to be done by the body:

"We have not outlined plans as yet. I will state, however, that certain statutes relating to the discharge of patients from our hospitals will be a prime consideration. We will report to the Legislature on or before January 15 next. We will have to consider chapter 87 in its entirety. It comprises 130 sections. This number will be added to by more recent acts. Our recommendations will cover many things.

MYSTERY IN DEATH OF RICH SOCIETY WOMAN

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Mrs. Ashton Harvey, wife of the wealthy and society lawyer of No. 53 Broadway, was found dead in bed at her home at Oyster Bay, country home at Short Hills, N. J., where the family has been all Summer, under circumstances which the police are investigating.

Then the local fire department was called out, but their efforts met with no better result. Early this morning trained bloodhounds were put on the trail and several hours later the body was found in the pond.

According to members of the family Mrs. Harvey had complained of a dizzy headache all morning. It is their theory that she walked near the edge of the pond, where she was attacked with a fainting spell which she was subject to, fell into the water and drowned.

PROOF THAT B. & M. R. R. BOUGHT NARROW GAUGE

RAILROAD BOARD, HOWEVER, ACCEPTS TUTTLE'S DENIAL WITHOUT INQUIRY.

The Railroad Commission today confirmed the BOSTON AMERICAN'S statement made two weeks ago that the Boston & Maine had in the past year illegally acquired control of the Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad.

The board, in a statement, announces that the B. & M. had bought 3,701 shares of stock in its treasury as collateral, and that these were transferred this year to four individual accounts; and that on Aug. 12 the 3,701 shares were sold to Estabrooke & Company, bankers at No. 15 State street.

Arthur Estabrooke is a Boston & Maine banker, but President Tuttle informs the Railroad Commission that his corporation has no "string" on the stock.

Take Tuttle's Word for It.

The Railroad Commissioners find President Tuttle not guilty on his own plea that he did not buy the stock. They announce that there is no need for action by the Attorney General.

The "interests" which hold the big block of "Narrow Gauge" stock were: Stephen L. Bartlett, Boston & Maine banker, 1,662 shares; Arthur F. Estabrooke, Boston & Maine banker, 850 shares; Henry F. Hurlburt, Boston & Maine counsel, 1,007 shares; William J. Hobbs, fourth vice-president and general auditor of the Boston & Maine, 272 shares.

And now these 3,701 shares are in the hands of ONE BOSTON & MAINE BANKER.

The Railroad Commission made its statement to-day in answer to a complaint filed by Attorney Roscoe Walsworth on July 15 that the Boston & Maine held control of the competing road in violation of the law. The State Board made its answer yesterday after the BOSTON AMERICAN'S exposure, and the Boston & Maine interests transferred the stock on August 12, TWENTY-EIGHT DAYS AFTER THE PROTEST WAS FILED.

Yet on President Tuttle's own plea, the Boston & Maine is found not guilty of gobbling up the little competing line.

The commission's statement says:

"It appears that in 1891 there was deposited with the treasurer of the Boston & Maine railroad, as collateral, 3,701 shares of the capital stock of the Boston & Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad Company. The shares so deposited secured three notes, made in the year 1891, and were accompanied by agreements between the Boston & Maine railroad by Frank Jones, its president, and James T. Furber.

"These shares were returned to the Commissioner of Corporations in 1908 as standing in the names of the following persons: Stephen L. Bartlett, 1,662 shares; Henry F. Hurlburt, 1,007 shares; William J. Hobbs, 272 shares; total, 3,701 shares.

"An Absolute Sale."

"After notice to the Boston & Maine Railroad that the 3,701 shares held as above stated were sold on August 12, 1908, to Estabrook & Co., bankers, 15 State street, Boston, at $110 per share, deliveries being made of the certificates in denominations as follows: Six of 500 shares, seven of 100 shares, one of 91 shares, and full payment in the sum of $417,010 was made to the Boston & Maine Railroad.

"We are informed by Mr. Lucius Tuttle, the president of the Boston & Maine Railroad, that this transfer is an absolute sale, without condition or understanding, expressed or implied, of any kind or character, and that the Boston & Maine does not, directly or indirectly, have any interest whatsoever in the said shares of the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad Company."

SECRET REPORT IN JORDAN MURDER CASE

A secret report in the Jordan murder case was filed by Medical Examiner George R. Magrath to-day in the office of District Attorney John B. Moran.

The filing was kept a secret at the request of District Attorney Higgins of Middlesex county, and, contrary to all precedence in such cases, it was withheld from the public and all information regarding it refused.

Later in the day Boston and Somerville policemen went before the Middlesex county Grand Jury in East Cambridge and gave evidence against Chester S. Jordan, upon which District Attorney John J. Higgins asked for the indictment of the prisoner on the charge of murdering his wife.

The officers who were called to the courthouse to testify were Inspector Carter, Lieutenant Kelly, Inspector Demerey and Patrolman Ray of Somerville, and Captain Dugan and Sergeant Crowley of Boston. Another witness in the case is George Collins, a cabman, who gave the police the clue which led to Jordan's arrest.

The body of Mrs. Jordan is still at the North Grove street morgue, unclaimed.

Jesse J. Liverpool, the young millionaire cotton king, has again shown his mind in the fight to save his brother-in-law by securing the services of William F. S. Hart, a New York lawyer of Seeley dimmed fame, to defend Jordan.

Attorney Hart has already held a long conference with Jordan at the jail, the result of which apparently left no doubt in Attorney Hart's mind but that the defence should be insanity.

Following the visit Mr. Hart said:

"I have been called into this case simply because I have had much experience with cases of this kind.

"I have just come from the jail, where I have talked with Chester Jordan for over an hour. Everything is going along smoothly and we expect to be prepared when the time comes."

Attorney Hart came into prominence some years ago by filing a bill of $15,000 against the State of New York, the bill being for expenses incurred by Police Captain Chapman in connection with the Seeley dinner raid at Sherry's on December 29, 1896, in which a dancer called "Little Egypt" figured prominently.

Hart, then a young lawyer, was Captain of Chapman's assignee. When Chapman got into trouble because of the part he played in the raid the captain turned his case over to Hart, who won it for his client.

The bill against the State was for expenses incident to the trial. The bill was filed under a special law. Hart's claim for the $15,000 was for eight days' work, but he contended that it was not large.

SOLVES NIGHT NAVIGATION IN BALLOON TRIP

Professor Clayton Makes Important Discovery on Voyage With Mr. Glidden.

TWO AIRSHIPS IN FLIGHTS

Traveling about in the night air at almost express train speed, two balloons today sailed two of the most remarkable flights ever made in the United States, starting from the western part of the State, both landing safely early to-day.

Charles J. Glidden piloted his balloon, the "Boston," by searchlight, and was accompanied by Professor H. J. Clayton of the Blue Hill observatory. They sailed from Springfield at forty minutes past midnight and landed at Bridgewater at 6 a. m. to-day. During the trip Professor Clayton made constant observations with a wonderful German machine, and he declares that as a result the problem of night air navigation for all kinds of airships has been solved. Professor Clayton will at once tabulate his observations, and the Aero Club will publish them for the benefit of airship navigators.

The second balloon, the Heart of the Berkshires, sailed from Pittsfield at fifteen minutes past midnight and landed in Kingston at 5:30 a. m. to-day, having traveled over 225 miles in a roundabout course. In this balloon were William Van Sicel and Dr. Sidney S. Stowell.

Ascended 3,300 Feet.

The Glidden balloon, Boston, traveled eighty-two miles. Most of the time was spent in flights to great heights in the air, the balloon at one time reaching a height of 3,300 feet.

Mr. Glidden passed through Boston today with his balloon on his way back to Pittsfield and he told the BOSTON AMERICAN his experience, constituting one of the most remarkable and interesting accounts of how it feels to fly over sleeping cities and towns, and shows the possibilities of sending a balloon at night into the enemy's country during warfare.

"We were nearly six hours in the air," said Mr. Glidden, "and traveled eighty-two miles, air line."

"Part of the time, or four hours and forty-five minutes, we were at speed of twenty miles an hour, at one time attaining the altitude of 3,300 feet, but most of the time holding reasonably close to the earth, frequently being within 500 feet of the ground. And we had enough sand ballast left to stay up another hour, but I scented the salt water some fifteen miles away and suggested the descent.

Solving Night Navigation.

"We floated over Worcester and many other cities and towns and knew what they were from our searchlight examining. Professor Clayton hardly rested a moment in the moving about the car and making lightning calculations which he says are as fast as they were made, so that we realized that he was solving the problem of air navigation by night.

"It was the greatest trip of my balloon experiences. One should certainly have a night trip to round out his balloon experience. The moon sailed high up and bright, flooding the earth, turning silver rivers into ribbons and reflecting back from houses, villages and cities in a wonderful way.

"We were not racing another balloon. It was simply a coincidence that the other was in the air at the time. We turned our searchlight in their direction at intervals during the trip.

"To me the echoes were very interesting last night, and most of them were very distinct. We would call out 'What place is this?' and in a few seconds the answer would echo back 'What place is this?' so plainly as to be almost startling.

Had Fun All the Way.

"The temperature at the highest altitude was sixty-nine. On the ground in East Bridgewater it was fifty-four. Our average height was 1,500 feet, about 900 at the start until, when the ground loomed up near Worcester and our trail rope dragged, we cast out ballast and went up to a height of 3,300 feet, clearing the city and high lands adjacent. After that we remained up pretty well so as to clear our trail rope.

"And we had some fun along the way. Whenever we floated close enough we addressed ourselves to the houses or to people on the roads. Once we held up a street car by shouting 'hello,' but they didn't seem to know where to look for us. Again, encountering a farmer driving along the road we fairly screamed at him, but could not make him hear us. Then I shouted 'whoa,' upon which his team stopped short, but the driver was evidently bewildered and I believe he did not see us, although we kept telling him to look up and see the balloon.

"Always the echo of our voices came back, but never a reply from the persons addressed. We did not awaken a soul on the trip.

"And at the finish 'The Boston' floated down as gently as a gull, and we alighted without the slightest disturbance. It was my sixteenth ascension in which I have ridden 678 miles and been in the air thirty-five hours and fifty-eight minutes. Professor Clayton has had a much broader balloon experience and has figured in the celebrated contests of other years."

Professor Clayton parted with Mr. Glidden at Hyde Park. The balloon was shipped by rail, practically accompanying Mr. Glidden back to Springfield.

In Roundabout Flight.

"The Heart of the Berkshires" travelled fully 225 miles in a roundabout flight. At one time the balloon was over Nashua, N. H. The balloon was in the air five hours and ten minutes, making a flight in an air line of 136 miles.

Although the two balloons had accompanied each other over a large portion of the State they were not in sight of one another at any time. Their flights were within fifteen miles of one another and almost within half an hour of one another. Many incidents of the two flights contributed to make them sensational and added valuable data to that being collected by scientists.

"The Heart of the Berkshires" sailed from Pittsfield at 12:15, with Dr. Sidney S. Stowell, a Pittsburg dentist, and William Van Sicel on board. They made their first night flight. As they soared into the darkness they took a northwesterly course over Dawson, Windsor and Cummington. The balloon went up about 1,500 feet, then fell rapidly and barely missed a tree. Part of the ballast was thrown out before the balloon arose again.

Lost Three Hours.

Mr. Van Sicel, in telling of the trip, said: "We started from Pittsfield at fifteen minutes after midnight in "The Heart of the Berkshires," and landed safe and sound at Kingston, within a few hundred feet of Kingston harbor. The descent was made barely in time to escape being blown out to sea. We found ourselves at 5:15 a. m. on an unpeopled shore, apparently, and so we had been lost for three hours, we supposed ourselves somewhere on the coast of Maine. Instead, we were just thirty miles from Boston."

DR. HEBER BISHOP SUES FOR DIVORCE IN MAINE

Prominent Insurance Man Alleges Desertion as Cause of His Action.

Dr. Heber Bishop, the well known Boston sportsman and manager of the accident department of the Aetna Life Insurance Company, with offices at No. 4 Liberty square, has filed a suit in Augusta, Me., for divorce from his wife, Emma, who lives with her two daughters at No. 30 Webster street, Brookline. Papers were served on Mrs. Bishop Tuesday. This news will create a sensation in Boston social circles, where Mrs. Bishop is well known. Her two daughters, Alice, aged twenty-one, and Leta, aged twenty-three, are prominent members of the younger set of that town.

Dr. Bishop gets a salary of $25,000 a year from the insurance company.

"Yes, I have filed a suit for divorce," said Dr. Bishop to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day. "I have a legal residence at Industry, Me., where my Summer home is located, and the reason I brought the suit down there was in order to protect my two daughters from notoriety.

Separated for Twenty Years.

"My wife and I have not lived together since the birth of our second child, about twenty years ago. This is a case of long standing, and I said many years ago that I would wait until my daughters were grown of age before bringing suit for divorce. I wanted to protect them."

Dr. Bishop lives in sumptuous style at the Copley Square Hotel, It is said. He is a widely known sportsman and spends many months each year hunting and fishing in Maine and New Brunswick. He leaves to-morrow for the Salmon and Canaan River section of New Brunswick on a hunting trip. He has given his wife, he says, a sum of money each week with which to live, since the separation.

Desertion Given as Cause.

In the papers filed in Maine, Dr. Bishop alleges desertion as the cause for divorce.

The Bishops were married in Montreal, coming to Boston shortly after. They have lived here ever since their marriage.

It is understood that Mrs. Bishop will contest the case. She has employed Henry V. Cunningham, a member of the Massachusetts Ballot Law Commission, to care for her interests. Dr. Bishop is represented by an Augusta, Me., attorney.

DAILY MUSIC AT SIEGEL BIG FOOD FAIR

The celebrated Kanrich orchestra of nine pieces, with a daily concert program, is securing a big hit this week at the annual pure food fair now on at the Siegel Cooper's store at Essex and Washington streets. The orchestra is under the directorship of Alfred M. Kanrich, conductor of the Boston Municipal band and orchestra, and it plays every day from 10 a. m. until 10 p. m. each night. Until Saturday night the program is changed daily. The engagement will conclude on Saturday.

The food show is distinctly a quality show, in every way it surpasses all previous like exhibits. A feature that is second perhaps to the orchestra, is the demonstration of electrically heated household appliances which is in charge of Mrs. E. Hexter. All kinds of devices for heating and cooking without coal, or oil, or without smoke, flame or soot, are shown in operation.

The show will end at the store Saturday.

3 BIDS FOR NEW BRIDGE

When competitive bids for building the new Massachusetts avenue bridge were opened in the office of City Engineer Jackson to-day, it was found that out of three bidders the New England Structural Company was lowest, with $22,342. The other two were Boston Bridge Works, $27,174, and H. F. Converse & Co., $27,849.

EVELYN TO TAKE HER CHAUFFEUR ON TRIP ABROAD

Thaws' Wife Will Sail September 26; Expects Plenty of Money Soon.

ALLOWANCE IN ARREARS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw sails for Europe on September 26. Although she has little money at present, and Harry Thaw is a month in arrears with her allowance, she is certain that she will come in for a large sum within a few days. The money was to have been delivered the first of this week, and she had intended to sail to-day.

The heroine of the Thaw case is going to take with her abroad the chauffeur who drove her to and from the Tombs during the long months of Harry Thaw's imprisonment. Apparently Mrs. Thaw is going in for motoring in the other side. When she first began to go daily to the Tombs she communicated with the New York Transportation Company and asked that a car and the best driver the company had be assigned to her. She wished to issue the car by the month. The company sent her a car with Chauffeur Richard Gervay. Gervay is young, rather handsome, and a crack chauffeur. During all those long months he came each day and drove Evelyn Thaw from the Lorraine to the Tombs and back.

The car was leased by Evelyn Thaw for $350 a month up to the time the bankrupter proceeding in Pittsburg was begun. Then the New York Transportation Company refused to extend further credit.

Gervay a few days later resigned a position with the transporting company to take one as private chauffeur of Mrs. Evelyn Thaw.

ALMSHOUSE NEEDS BOILER

Chairman Edward M. Gallagher of the Pauper Institutions Board of Trustees wants to take $2,000, which the city appropriated five years ago for an ice house at Long Island, and use it to put in a new boiler in the almshouse heating plant. Chairman Gallagher figures that the almshouse inmates need heat now more than they do ice, especially as they have waited five years for the new ice house.

A communication from Chairman Gallagher to Mayor Hibbard to-day asking permission to use the ice house money for this purpose was received by Acting Mayor Leo McCullough.

COURT FREES FITZGERALD

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—George W. Fitzgerald, former assistant secretary of the sub-treasury, was freed to-day by Judge Chetlain in the case charging him with the theft of $175,000 belonging to the United States government.

Judge Chetlain threw the case out of court on his own initiative, and Fitzgerald, who was arrested at midnight two weeks ago last Saturday night, received the congratulations of his wife and a score of personal friends.

WOMAN HEAD OF BOLD BAND OF BURGLARS

Mrs. F. R. Hillery, of New York, Under Arrest in Richmond.

SAYS SHE FURNISHED CASH

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 10.—After two sleepless nights and days, in which they carefully trailed men and women alleged to be implicated in a huge diamond and baggage theft gang, railroad and local detectives were rewarded when a woman, confessedly the wife of the late F. F. Hillery of New York, stated that she was the financial support of a band of confidence men, baggage and jewelry thieves.

Horace R. Courtland, wanted in many cities, and for whom a reward of $5,000 is offered, is the alleged outside head of the band.

Prior to her arrest Mrs. Courtland is known to have attempted to pawn a watch, diamond studded, and which is worth, as jewellers say, at least $2,000. Mrs. Courtland offered the watch to Sam Achacik, a pawnbroker, for $700. It is known that costly diamonds have also been offered for pawn.

4 INJURED IN WRECK ON NEW HAVEN

STEVENSON, Ct., Sept. 10.—In a head-on collision between a passenger train and a freight on the Berkshire division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad last night D. A. Reickart, baggagemaster of the passenger, was seriously injured; Henry W. Hoyt of Danbury, injured about the head and arms; C. P. Hatch of Fairfield, cut about the head and his back injured. The last two were passengers on the train.

Morris Danchy of Rowayton, who was riding on a freight car, received internal injuries, from the effects of which he may not recover.

The passenger train, which was an express eastward bound out of New Haven, carried a large number of the delegates who had been attending the Republican State convention.

CONTRACTORS ARRAIGNED

Morris Seegal and Morris Gordon, contractors blamed by the police for the collapse of the building in Chelsea months recently, when eight workmen were killed and many others injured, were arraigned before Special Justice George M. Stearns in the Police Court in that city to-day for a full hearing.

The police charge each with manslaughter. About twenty witnesses were sworn and most of them excused until Tuesday, after Police Chief Shannon, City Clerk Reed and Dr. Thomas W. Salmon of the Marine Hospital had testified. The bail of Seegal and Gordon has been fixed at $5,000 each.

WOMAN OF 72 PICKPOCKET FOR 25 YEARS

Elizabeth Dillon in Court on Charge of Stealing at Dudley Street Terminal.

LONG CAREER OF CRIME

A pathetic picture was presented in the Police Court to-day when Elizabeth Dillon, gray-haired and dressed in deep mourning, entered the prisoners' dock with a faltering step to answer the charge of pocket-picking.

The woman is seventy-two years of age, but for nearly half a century has carried on her operations in nearly every city in the union and is declared to be the cleverest woman pickpocket in the country.

For some time complaints have been received by the police about pockets being picked at the Dudley street station, and several days ago Inspector Smith was detailed to investigate. For two hours yesterday afternoon he watched the old woman, and finally detected her picking the pocket of Emma Crowell of No. 99 Kingston street, Roslindale.

When searched Mrs. Dillon had in her pocketbook, which she took, which contained $1.20 in cash and some papers.

NEW HIGGEN CLUB FORMED IN WARD 2

A strong Higgen and Graves' club, which will take an active part in the Fall campaign, has been organized in Ward 2, East Boston. Nearly 100 prominent young men of the ward have signed the charter membership roll, and many additional ones have signified their intention of joining.

Officers will be elected soon and a plan of action decided upon for the coming campaign.

The club will further the candidacy of Thomas L. Higgen of Springfield, candidate of the Independence party for President and John Temple Graves of Georgia for Vice President.

Prominent in the formation of the club are the following East Boston young men: Francis Evans, Nathan Rosenthal, Edward Sinclair, Jacob White, William F. Milendly, William Ransom, Paul Pitts, George W. Lewis, Michael Moore, Albert Friedberg, Julius Grund, John Brown, William Russell, Charles Hopper, Frederick Knetch, Joseph Silvia, Hyman Cutts, Enos E. Bowers and fifty others.

CUBS' PROTEST NOT ALLOWED

PITTSBURG, Sept. 10.—The protest filed by the Chicago Club of the game here on September 4 has not been allowed by President Pulliam. Chicago protested on the ground that Gill did not run to second base in the tenth inning when Wilson rode the hit that won the game, scoring Scott. Pulliam says that the umpire, by allowing the winning run, ruled that there was no force at second base.

Real Facts About the Hair

The air is full of floating dust, dirt and disease germs, which settle upon everything.

You can see the dust on the chairs, tables and shelves in your own house every day.

Of course these things are dusted regularly or a thick coating of dirt would soon result.

But how about your head and hair?

Dust and germs settle there the same as upon furniture, but you can't brush them off.

There is a natural oil on your head that holds the dust fast, and in a short time you have dandruff and scalp troubles.

The pores in your scalp are stopped up, the hair roots get no nourishment, and then your hair begins to fall out.

It is all such a simple matter that a child can see that cleanliness is the one and the only thing needed.

You don't need tonics, nor renewers, nor invigorators, nor growers, nor any sort of secret thing sold in a bottle.

You need Birt's Head Wash, which will put your hair and scalp in a healthy, natural condition, and you ought to use it at least once a week.

Birt's Head Wash is equally good for light or dark hair, as it is not a dye.

It does, however, put the scalp in such healthy shape that faded, lifeless hair resumes its natural color, and the hair of all who use it takes on a soft silky gloss and sheen that every man and woman so much admires.

There is no alcohol in Birt's Head Wash, as alcohol is said to make hair turn gray prematurely.

Birt's Head Wash is made of Refined Soap, Cochin Cocoanut Oil, White of Eggs, Glycerin and Salicylic Acid.

There are no better things than these known for cleansing the hair and scalp.

If you wash your hair with common soaps and shampoos it will become dry, faded and lifeless, because they often contain too much alkali or potash.

If you use secret liquid preparations you are courting danger, because they may contain poisonous things that your condition does not call for.

Don't use anything on your hair unless you know exactly what it is made of.

A safe rule is this: Use Birt's Head Wash, because you KNOW what it is made of. Don't use other so-called hair remedies, because you DON'T know what they are made of.

Birt's Head Wash is the newest and best thing for the head and hair on the market, and your druggist either has it on sale now, or can telephone his wholesaler and get a package for you in a very short time.

The Lady from Mars

Her Tabloid Impressions During a Visit to Earth

By MARGARET ROHE

HOME life of Humans most peculiar. Families consist of one male called a Husband, one female called a Wife and small hairy four-footed animal called a Fido. In rare cases families, instead of a Fido, have several Humans of small stature which are the young. These are seldom found among the better classes. Unpleasant female Humans called Cooks and Mother-in-Law are also found in some of the best families.

Humans live in little, dark, box-like sections of huge stone and brick cavelike structures called Fabricated Apartments. Several hundred Humans packed in one such structure ruled over by fierce male Human called Janitor.

Very little time spent in these home boxes by Humans, in early morning Husband Human, hiding behind large black and white sheet of paper marked "Early Edition," masticate fruit of the hen fowl. He emits short growls in answer to uttering of Wife Human.

During feed, Wife Human invariably

Growls and Chatter

asks for "more money." She does not get it. She streams at the orbs. Husband Human leaves in great hurry for another box at great distance called an office.

Here is attractive female Human called Stenographer. She sometimes plays on small machine with black and white clickers, but more often pats distended nest of fuzzy hair on head and blinks orbs at male Human. He does not growl at Stenographer Human as at Wife Human, but makes "ha, ha" noise with vocal chords and stretches his mouth in happy expression.

Fido the Chief Care

Wife Human, left alone in home box, sits much before a reflecting surface and applies red and white pigments to countenance. Also piles much inflated hair on head. Other female Humans come to her home box. They emit up-and-down grins and make gurgling sounds over the Fido.

In the evening Husband Human comes home. He takes the Fido out in the air, attached to a string. Fido feed by male Human retires behind printed sheet.

After Fido feed, Wife Human shows teeth, saying, "Now we will have nice quiet evening together." Just runs back to little talk-and-listen machine. "Hello," says Husband Human into machine, and listens.

The Lady from Mars Inspects Married Humans and Discovers That There Are Jarring Notes.

After barking he tells Wife Human he is called to Office—"big deal, night work."

The Wife Human Waits

Wife Human streams more at orbs and utters shrill cries of rage. Husband Human disappears in direction opposite to office box. Wife Human removes hair, complexion and all-encasing armor and waits with flat-iron weapon.

After long hours Husband Human returns with uncertain gait and spirited breath. He removes foot covering, but the Human takes firmer grip on flat-iron weapon. Much noisy talk from Wife Human and loud wailing notes from throat and nostrils of prostrate male Human. Sounds discourage Wife Human and the Fido, and they join in similar chorus.

Beatrice Fairfax Asks American Women's Sympathy for Countess Rohozinska, Who, Since Her Escape from a Harem, Is Trying to Free Her Turkish Sisters

THE COUNTESS DE ROHOZINSKA IN HER TURKISH HAREM COSTUME

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DID it ever strike you, my sisters, how unspeakably grateful we American women should be for our privileges?

We want to vote, and some day we will, but in the meantime do not let us be ungrateful for all the liberties and privileges that are ours.

In far-off Turkey a noble woman, the Countess de Rohozinska, is fighting for a few privileges for her oppressed sisters. She is the Susan B. Anthony of Turkey.

She is Turkish by birth and, rather than suffer the horrors and indignities of harem life, she fled to France, where she married a Polish count.

Her main object in life is to do away with that most infamous insult to womankind, the harem. We fight for women's rights and consider ourselves much abused in lacking the few privileges we do. What would we think if we had to bear the trials of the women of Turkey?

People will say, "Oh, most women don't mind the life, they are used to it and would not dream of rebelling against it."

That is not true. They do hate it and they do rebel, but what chance have they to remedy it? I have been in the Orient and I have seen how jealously the harems are guarded.

The women have a life of enervating luxury and indolence, and that is all. No knowledge of the outside world comes to them. They are not encouraged to read nor to improve themselves in any way.

The woman of America enjoys more privileges than any other woman in the world.

Almost every line of business is open to her and man does not regard her as an amusing toy created solely for his benefit and pleasure. He respects her and values her opinions and judgment.

The mere fact that a woman is earning her own living does not mean that she has lost one atom of her femininity. The aggressive woman is born so, and if she never left the protection of the home circle her aggressiveness would still stand out.

It is much to be hoped that the Countess de Rohozinska will be successful in her fight for liberty for her countrywomen, and every free and respected woman the world over should send her a kindly thought.

No. 10—The Sphinx, the Oldest Human Relic

By REV. THOS. B. GREGORY

DOLER than the Golden Fleece or the Roman Eagle? Yes, there is something that is older than either of these ancient things. Older than the Pyramids!

Yes, there is that which is even more venerable than the Pyramids. The Sphinx was on guard while as yet the towering monuments by the Nile were existent, if existent at all, only as an idea of the mind.

How old is the Sphinx?

Nobody can answer that question. It is as old as anything we know of in the shape of man's art. It was here when history first began to look around for something to record upon her scroll.

This mysterious image is located about 1,800 feet southeast of the Great Pyramid, and has been digging at the problem of the Sphinx's riddle, but the riddle that man puts to the Sphinx is still unsolved.

The great image stands there looking out over the desert sands in absolute silence. Its lips have never parted. From those lips no voice has ever issued. Question it and it makes no answer. Silence it just crouches there and watches, passing aweary in the round of Nature and the life of Man.

In amazement—the amazement that strikes us quite dumb—we "view the landscape o'er," take in the mighty panorama as it is displayed before us and passes away, and when, looking into one another's eyes, we ask the question, "What does it all mean?" no answer is returned.

Like the Sphinx, we are watching and keeping guard at the midst of the mysteries we can only keep still and know that we know not.

The old folk of the long ago had the same sort of human hearts that we have, the same thoughts and emotions, the same appreciation of life's inevitable mystery—and out of the great granite boulder they hewed the Sphinx, saying to it, in substance, "As the countless generations of men and women come and go across the stage of the world, let them put their question to You and You will for an answer."

A famous traveller has left it on record that he thought he saw, mirrored in the calm awe of the Sphinx's countenance, an expression of infinite contentment and peace, as though it saw something in the far distance that afforded it a deep satisfaction.

Maybe this is symbolical of the "Hope" that "springs eternal in the human breast," somehow keeping us quite comfortable and happy in the midst of life's mysteries.

The Sphinx as It Appears To-day on the Sands of Egypt, the Symbol of Wisdom and Eternal Silence.

It is a natural rock, hewn into the shape of an animal with the head of a woman and the wings of a bird. The head has been sculptured with artistic care, and though considerably disfigured by the elements and man's spite, there is still about its face the look that fills the beholder with the sense of a strange awe.

The height from the base is sixty-three feet, the length 155 feet. The ears each measure six feet five inches, the nose five feet ten inches and the mouth seven feet eight inches. Across the cheeks the face is thirteen feet seven inches. The neck at the shoulders is ninety-nine feet in circumference and at the head sixty-six feet.

A Hidden Temple

Recent excavations have revealed between the paws of the monster a temple with six compartments, one above the other, and a grand staircase leading to it from the plain.

The name "Sphinx" is Greek, and means "the pouring out"; hence it was clearly meant by that people that the Sphinx meant the overflow of the Nile.

With the lively imagination that made them the most wonderful race of which history affords us any knowledge, the Greeks, as soon as they had their eyes on the strangely impressive image by the Nile, began to tell stories about it, the most interesting of which is the one connected with the name of Edipus.

Here is the story: A monster with the face of a woman, the breast, feet and tail hewed of a lion and the wings of a bird, sat on a hill near the Grecian city of Thebes and was put to its inhabitants this riddle:

"What is that which has one voice, is four-footed, two-footed, and at last three-footed?"

The oracle, upon being appealed to, told the Thebans that they would not be delivered from the monster until they had solved the riddle.

The Monster at Work

They often went to try their skill, but without success, and as often as they approached the exoteric and the esoteric. The first was for the masses of the people; the second, for the initiated, the comparatively small number, who formed the aristocracy of intellect.

Now, the Sphinx is supposed by many excellent authorities to have been the emblem of the esoteric religion, the type, in a word, of the enigmatical nature of the universe, and of our thought regarding it.

Such being the case, what a tremendous human interest the venerable statue at once assumes!

An Eternal Watcher

As the Sphinx sits there, age after age, watching the driving sands, we watch the passing events in the round of Nature and the life of Man.

How Lil' Love Broke All the Rules

HE was brought in, a tiny bundle of humanity, by a sinisterly handsome woman who paid the hospital clerk $2, gave a name and address, and slipped away into the night.

The woman who left the child never returned to claim it.

"Huh!" said the superintendent. "The woman evidently wasn't the mother at all. Goodness knows where the child belongs! It's plainly a case for the orphanage."

So They Kept Him

A nurse who was in the office flew upstairs to tell the other girls. "They're going to send Lil' Love to an orphanage," she sobbed. The superintendent entered and called the head nurse.

"Notify the orphanage at once," he said, "and get the child ready. It is one of the express trains. The hospital has no free bed and it cannot be kept for any but the sick. There is no use of finding his people, as they have dropped him here and then disappeared."

Poor little Lil' Love spied him. With a wild sort of war whoop he attacked him with an orange. Ave Lal' Love's stamped on the floor. The superintendent weakened and the head nurse seized the propitious moment.

"Can't we keep him just a little while?" she asked. "The hospital isn't half crowded now, and the nurses still care for him gladly. Besides, there is no one ready in need of his bed. Perhaps we can find some other place for him. And you know what an orphanage means!"

"Well, as you please," said the superintendent. "I'll wait until the first trustee comes and see what he says."

The Trustee Arrives

Now, the first trustee was a particularly crusty old bachelor who was a martinet for abiding by the rules; so they were sure that his coming meant the going of Lil' Love. On Saturday they heard his voice in the hall. He was speaking to the superintendent.

"Now," he said, "such sentiments are very pretty, indeed, but not in accordance with the policy of a well-run hospital. It is particularly to avoid having the wards overrun with indigents who have neglected that such a rule was made. The child must go, and it is fortunate that he has so good a place to go to."

Then the two men had entered the ward to find Lil' Love entertaining an audience of crippled and sick children, squatted on the floor in a circle. Gravely the little chap picked up his skirts and executed a sailor hornpipe, accompanying himself with an original melody in a minor key.

"Now, now!" said the superintendent, surprise, "to send a child like that to an orphanage! I'm sure if he is here long enough some one will want to adopt him. He feel really isn't needed, you know!"

He Captivates Another

"Well, well! What do I know about children, anyway? I'll leave it to the other trustees. Do as you please with him!"

The second trustee was a childless widower to whom children were an unknown and exciting quantity. As he happened, no attendant was in the ward when he came, and an astonished nurse entered soon after to find Lil' Love on his knee, striking his long beard and crying, "Beautiful man, beautiful man!" The second trustee was far from being beautiful, but he seemed to absorb the child's flattery. The truth was that Lil' Love, being presented to the smooth-faced young interne, was interested in the trustee's beard. The nurse seized the man's softened mood to say that this was the child whom they would have to send to the orphanage without the trustees allowed him to remain until some one would adopt him. The trustee took off Lil' Love and prepared to do his duty. The hurt look on the child's eyes evidently struck some hidden, tender chord in his breast.

"Well," said the second trustee, "I'll leave it to the third trustee. What do I know about children, anyway."

A Permanent Boarder

The third trustee was the jovial father of five youngsters and readily gave his consent to Lil' Love's staying as long as he wanted. What were rules for, he asked, if not to be broken?

So Lil' Love stayed until the weeks stretched into months and still no one came to adopt him. Then the wards became crowded and even the nurses admitted that he must go to the orphanage. They packed his belongings in a bundle, dressed him in a collection of borrowed clothes and amid tears prepared to take him away.

But on the last girl gave him the last kiss, the first trustee swung into the room. He is the attendant in a grand way.

"Now, now!" he blustered, "tears are unbecoming in a trained nurse, not to say unbecoming. I'll pay the child's board until to-morrow."

So Lil' Love gained a legal delay. The next day an unsigned gift came to the superintendent, endowing a ward bed for those little chil, not necessarily entirely ill, who shall be designated by the management, to be used by him as long as seems fit." And so Lil' Love was made a permanent boarder and official entertainer of the children's ward, at least until some one takes him to cherish always.

Gay World Condemns Fat

The Empire and the Directoire gown having come to stay, fatness is de trop—that is to say, "not in it." Fat ladies are threatened with being wiped off the map.

There is one loophole of escape, however, for the overfat lady. Let her get one of the large cases of Marmola Prescription Tablets, and take one after each meal and at bedtime, and pretty soon she will notice she will be wearing the new clothes with credit to herself and the consternation of her dear enemies.

These cases of Marmola Prescription Tablets, which, by the way, being made strictly in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription, are perfectly harmless, contain such a generous quantity of tablets that they last a long time. They are sold by druggists everywhere at $1 a case, or they can be obtained from the Marmola Company, Detroit, Mich.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

NOT NECESSARILY SO

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am keeping company with a young man for about seven months, of whom I think a great deal, and he has told me many times that he loves me, but at times I have my doubts.

Sometimes he goes a month and never writes but one letter a week, and I think if he really loved me as he says he does he would write oftener.

ANXIOUS.

SOME people find it very hard to write letters, and perhaps your friend is that kind. If he is working hard all day he probably does not feel much like letter writing at night. Do not be so ready to doubt.

MERE SUPERSTITION

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am going to be married in four weeks, and as I do all my own sewing, I intended making my own wedding dress. My friends, hearing of this, asked me not to do it, saying it would have bad luck. Would you kindly tell me if this can be true?

A. K.

NO, my dear, of course, it is not true. Go ahead and make your wedding dress. You are a capable young woman to be able to do so. Do not listen when your friends talk such nonsense.

HELD AS 'BLACK HAND;' THREAT FOR HUB WOMAN

An Employe of Mrs. Gardner Blanchard Perry, in Court; Bonds Fixed at $5,000.

WRITING EXPERT TESTIFIES

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 10.—Following the testimony of Mrs. Gardner Blanchard Perry, a wealthy society woman of Boston and Middletown, and William Hingston, a Boston handwriting expert, who testified in the famous Tucker trial, John Fogarty was found probably guilty of using the mails to extort money from Mrs. Perry by means of "Black Hand" letters.

The hearing was before United States Commissioner Greene yesterday afternoon, Fogarty being held in $5,000 bonds for the Federal Grand Jury. Fogarty was a groom on the Middletown estate of Mrs. Perry.

"I had no suspicions toward anyone in my household," testified Mrs. Perry. "I didn't think that any of them would think of doing such a thing. My waitress, Harriet Armstrong, received the first of the threatening letters on Monday, July 20. It lay on the front door mat. The second letter came to me through the mails on the Sunday following, July 26.

Rang Door Bell and Fled.

"I never thought that the sender could be one of my own household. I really suspected that the sender was someone living in the neighborhood. The front door bell rang late in the evening of July 19 but when a maid answered the bell no one was at the door. About 4 o'clock the next morning steps were heard on the front porch and a few hours later the letter was found.

"I believe that the person who left the threatening letter rang the bell the night before, but lost courage and left without doing so. Then this person, I think, returned the next morning and left the letter where my maid found it. Fogarty, the groom, had his living quarters over the stable."

William Hingston, the Boston handwriting expert, testified that he believed the handwriting in the two "Black Hand" letters was identical with samples of Fogarty's writing.

"I lived in some time in mortal terror, because of these threats," added Mrs. Perry, whose Winter residence is at No. 49 Commonwealth avenue, Boston. "The writer had said if I didn't deposit $1,000 under a certain stone in the yard, he would blow me and my house to hell."

Got Samples of Writing.

J. F. Colbert, assistant superintendent of the Boston Pinkerton Detective Agency, described how he got samples of Fogarty's hand-writing by getting him to assist in preparing an inventory of Mrs. Perry's stable furnishings under a pretense of a proposed sale.

Colbert said that one of the "Black Hand" letters had been finished on Fogarty and that without possessing any previous knowledge of the intention of the detectives so far as he knew Fogarty protested voluntarily that he had never written Mrs. Perry any "Black Hand" letters.

Fogarty was arrested August 18 at the Middletown estate of Mrs. Perry by United States Marshal Daniel H. Ballou and Post office Inspectors Pendleton and Jennings of Boston. The arrest followed three weeks' investigation by the Pinkerton detectives.

The Detroit Tigers got a little stronger hold on that first position at the expense of the White Sox, who are running them for the place, but as they line up again this afternoon the Sox are likely to get back the point they lost, as it took the Tigers twelve innings to beat the dark horses for the pennant.

Another one of the leaders also got a set-back when the Browns went down before the Naps, which spoiled a chance for them to regain second place away from the White Sox, and now the Naps are only a couple of games shy on the Browns for third position.

Then they change partners, the Naps facing the White Sox and in their own camp, and the Tigers going to the Mound City. When these series are wound up about the middle of the month, then the Eastern teams will invade the Western territory and should find the pennant seekers easier picking after battling so strenuously among themselves.

From the outlook so far, the four leaders keeping well bunched, the result of the Eastern teams against them will have considerable influence on who will be the final winner.

All three leaders in the National League won, so there's no change there.

Fistic Expert Vividly Describes Great Bout

HOW NELSON BEAT GANS

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—Battling Nelson fought Joe Gans to a standstill in twenty-one rounds in Coffroth's arena." At the finish Gans was being hammered along the ropes, Nelson giving his attention mainly to body punches. Occasionally the Battler made a left and right swing for the head, which Gans ducked in a feeble, ineffectual manner.

Finally the Battler planted him against the ropes and landed a right swing to the body, stomach and ribs with terrific force. At last Gans fell and could not bring his man to the floor. Gans saw a chance as Joe sbought to escape by shifting and he took a couple of steps. He was exhausted and fell on his knees and one hand, then he got the palm of als hand on the floor, and he fell forward on his face.

When the timekeeper said "Eight" Joe tried to rise, but the words "Nine and out" were too quick for him—too quick for correct counting—for the timekeeper slapped Nelson on the shoulder, signifying that the Battler was still the light-weight champion.

Those who heard the timekeeper's counting complained of the quick way in which he said "Nine and out," as any case Gans was a whipped man. He was tired and badly bruised and confused, and if he had been allowed to continue it is any odds you like that he could not have lasted out the round.

Desperate and Clever.

It was a desperate fight and as clever and hardened ring followers could wish to see, and if anyone ever showed Gans of having a yellow streak he should make full and ample apology to this same Nelson.

He promised us he would put up a better fight than he did in Reno, and he certainly kept his word. He showed the effects of much sparring while in training, but did little damage. Gans ripped a left to the stomach and a right to the chin and Nelson began, using his elbow on Gans's face in an unfair way. Nelson grabbed Gans around the neck and gave it two left body blows. Gans's round.

SECOND ROUND.

Nelson went after Gans and they clinched and Gans covered up. Gans was holding his head down and tried to save himself. Nelson whirled his left glove around and landed it against Gans's bruised nose. The Battler put in a left to the stomach and a short right to the ear. Gans has not struck back in this round. Nelson was evidently following some plan of battle he had mapped out. Gans drove away and Nelson rushed him along the ropes with lefts and rights. Then Gans came back with savage rights and Nelson was very unsteady for a few moments. Nelson pressed in again and was running punches into Gans's body at the bell.

TWELFTH ROUND.

Nelson followed Gans and the negro clinched, and then it was Nelson trying to send and Gans ducking him. Gans loosened up once or twice with right uppercuts and then covered up again. Each man landed a right on the chin and Gans drove a hard right to the stomach. In a full minute Gans contented himself with ducking and saving his chin, then he drove in left and right uppercuts and bucked Nelson again. Nelson forced him around, pumping in all kinds of lefts and rights on the body and face. Gans managed to get clear, but near the end of the round he had all his strength into a hard right. Nelson's round.

THIRTEENTH ROUND.

Nelson forced his man all around the ring and sent in hard lefts to the body. They clinched, and Gans, by way of diversion, started for the Battler's body as the latter was hooking for the chin and resulted in landing two lefts to the stomach. Nelson shook from the force of the blows, but Nelson hit rather hard and during a fierce fight Gans landed a hard left to the body and succeeded in holding the Dane at bay. It was only short, however, before they were in close and swung a terrific left to Gans's mouth, starting the blood.

FOURTEENTH ROUND.

Gans's seconds went over his sore spots. Nelson rushed in with lefts to the body. Nelson swung and missed with rights and lefts to the body, landing both right and left again on the stomach. Gans was evidently Gans loosened up and landed two hard rights to the stomach. Nelson's left arm blows to Nelson's body were started from Nelson's hips. Gans tried to land a right to the jaw, but Nelson put his head on Gans's shoulder and they clinched. Nelson landing three hard rights to the stomach and one to the face. Gans was pushed around the ring.

Gans landed right uppercuts to the chin and stomach. Nelson pinned Gans' body against the ropes and forced in body punches with both hands. Gans blocked for a moment and then Nelson put a crack with choppy rights on the jaw. Then Gans went on the defensive again and Nelson landed body with both hands. Nearly even round.

FIFTH ROUND.

Nelson grazed Gans's forehead with a left and Gans put a right body blow in. Nelson forced Gans around and Gans covered his ribs. Gans used the right uppercut with good effect on Nelson's stomach and Gans held his face for quite awhile and then Nelson got away and forced Gans back upon unsteady. Nelson backed Gans into a corner and rammed his body with lefts and rights. Gans blocked and then ran away. Nelson was then spread his guns, retaining Nelson in the pit of the stomach and on the point of each jaw.

SIXTH ROUND.

Nelson trotted forth and stabbed at the stomach. Gans blocked and backed around. Nelson followed Gans for a few seconds' cure, but Gans guarded with perfect ease. Then Gans was being forced around and backed around the ropes and Nelson made fierce efforts to send Gans to the floor. Gans let go and got in a right to the body, and Nelson was forced to the ropes. Nelson went to grappling again. Gans smoothly forced and Nelson tried to land. Gans ducked and put in rights to the stomach and jaw. Nelson got home with a hard right, blocked a grass and Gans scored with two right uppercuts just before the bell rang.

EIGHTH ROUND.

They came to a clinch. Nelson tried without success to land for the jaw. Gans sent out a right left to Gans's mouth, bringing the blood. Gans sent two fierce right uppercuts to the head. They swayed around with Gans blocking and Nelson trying to get in a clinch. They came together in a clinch and the referee implored Nelson to be clean. Nelson scored in an occasional left to the face. Gans loosened up for a moment and sent two hard rights to the body with uppercuts. Gans then forced Nelson for awhile, Nelson defending himself by using his forearm for punching purposes. They were being together for the last of the bell.

NINTH ROUND.

They went to a clinch and Gans then backed away. Gans kept looking for an opening for his right and found one, sending in a fierce right uppercut to the jaw. Nelson closed in and Gans used his gloves and forearms for blocking purposes. Nelson got in a couple of left jolts to the jaw and got away, getting in light uppercut. Nelson began to find a way to the body. Gans blocked his forearm and the Battler put a stiff right to the jaw. Even round.

TENTH ROUND.

Gans tried three rights before one landed. He caught Nelson on the jaw. Two times out in a right which nearly caused Nelson to fall. The latter gathered himself and tore in again, getting in light punches on the body, while Gans tried to smother up. After a spell of clinching Gans threw a hard left to the stomach and then went on the defensive as Nelson closed in. Nelson kept trying to hit, but for the right handers with which he jarred Nelson were the element of the clean. He had Nelson staggering in the very first round, and was as much in the lead when the gong sounded that it looked as though it would be an unanimously short fight, with Gans returned a winner.

Nelson a Wonder for Gameness.

It was really wonderful the way in which this fellow Nelson takes cracks on the jaw and keeps right on coming. Distributed among other fighters the right crosses that Gans landed would accomplish a score of knockouts, but the Dane seems to be immune to any kind of punish. He staggered, stepped and wobbled, not once, but several times in every round. He had but to look in his face to prevent himself lurching sideways, but in every instance he sprang to his feet and landed a part of a second, almost and kept pilling for fight Gans and trying to drive his fearful gripped glove clear through the negro's body.

SEVENTEENTH ROUND.

Nelson again came up dancing, landing with two hard rights to the jaw. Gans stalled for a moment while Nelson was banging away. Gans uppercut him with right to the face, but Nelson closed in and landed two or three short arm blows to the stomach. They worked to the center of the ring and Gans shook Nelson up with two powerful rights to the body. They did not come keeping at close quarters, but Nelson gave Gans a chance to get both clinching, and Gans hooked a terrific right to Nelson's face. Even round.

EIGHTEENTH ROUND.

Nelson landed a left to the face and Gans came back with a fierce left to the jaw. Gans slipped to the floor from force of the blow and Nelson quickly pursued him to rise. Nelson rushed, leading with left to face and Gans ducked. Gans stalled, Gans shot a left to body and they exchanged rights, all of which were light. Gans staggered Nelson with two pile-driving rights to the jaw. The Dane, however, did not go down. He rushed Gans against the ropes and landed two or three solid punches to the face and jaw, but Gans rallied and before the gong rang Gans covered with a right and left to the stomach. This was a very fast round.

NINETEENTH ROUND.

They fought at close quarters, Gans uppercutting with right to the face. They exchanged right uppercuts to the jaw, after which Gans sent in two to the pit of the stomach. Nelson bored in, working both hands in his effort to get to the body. Gans blocked. Nelson pushed Gans to the floor and fell on top of him. The crowd yelled fiercely. When the men arose Nelson put the right hand to Gans's body and landed a fierce punch. There was a mix-up in which Nelson's eye was smeared. It was Gans's round.

TWENTIETH ROUND.

They went to a clinch. Gans broke and shook Nelson with punishing rights on the mouth. The Dane allowed himself to be forced to the ropes, after which big Gans around the ropes and Gans kept up a long spell of clinching Gans again used the right uppercut with good effect on the sides of the head with high swings. Gans rushed Nelson to the ropes and they were parted. Nelson kept after him, landing lefts and rights and free and Gans was in a mix up. The bell came to his relief.

TWENTY-FIRST ROUND.

Gans tried a right uppercut which Nelson blocked. When they clinched Nelson seized Gans by the body and forced him around and Gans straightened Nelson up with a right to the jaw. Gans's eye was closed and the other gashed. Nelson rushed Gans to the ropes. Nelson had him against the ropes and drove punishing lefts against ribs and stomach. Gans fell on his knees exhausted. He was helped to his corner and although he made an effort to get up within the count of ten.

GOOD PRELIMS ARRANGED AT ARMORY A. A.

Two of the best bouts that could be arranged to precede the star bout at the Armory Club next Tuesday night were clinched yesterday, and the club members are assured of some good sport.

Jimmy Ryan, who has fought for eight rounds, between Jack Killeen, the Irish whirlwind, who has pleased the club members by his aggressive efforts, and ex-Champion Tommy Billy Rolfe, who made an even break with Killeen on his entry into the professional ranks.

The other bout, really of main bout class, contains the far-famed Eddie Murphy, one of the greatest favorites that ever donned the gloves at the Armory. He will box Harry Scroggs of New York for eight rounds. Both of these men are in the pink of the hardest, gamest lads in this class there is sure to be lively stepping.

Those who saw Sandy Ferguson, the Chelsea giant, at the Armory Club last Monday remarked his improved appearance and figured that he should beat Jeannette next Tuesday night.

Jimmy Le Fevre, manager of Jeannette, says that his man is in fine physical shape, that he did not "lay off" after his battle with Sam Langford, and that he expects to stop Sandy before the limit of the contest is reached.

HONEYMOON TO JAPAN FOR TYRUS COBB

That honeymoon trip to Japan that Ty Cobb has promised his bride on the day of their wedding is no myth, though it necessarily will be postponed until next year. Word has been received from Mike Fisher, the San Francisco fight promoter, that he is to pilot the Winter Club party to the Orient, and that the plans are now completed, and that the schedule is practically settled. Fisher has several cities to go over the ground, and several money matters.

Cobb will leave in March, following the baseball season, and will go direct to Manila, having completed his work on the diamond by that time.

Ten games have been arranged with Japanese clubs, including Waseda, Keio and Waseda University. The team is also to play the Philippine and Hong Kong clubs. Cobb says he expects to visit Australia, and the trip, as planned by Fisher, for the party leaves San Francisco early in November, and will be back in February.

It is none of a Californian team than on a mighty good one, as it has some stars selected. Frank Chance, Orvie Overall and Harry Wolter, the Washington leftfielder, all Californians, are on the team, and there are several others from the Golden Gate district. It, therefore, the Boston catcher, Cobb can play the game against his old mates in the nine. He and Barnes have played in Honolulu and so will meet there.

WILLIAMS SELLS ALLERTON, TO SURPRISE OF HORSEMEN

C. W. Williams of Galesburg, Ill., has famous as the fastest in the country. From almost every State in the Union horses were sent there during the next few years to race or trot for records, and to this scene of track stardom stepped into national celebrity.

In old times, not only at the race track, but in hotels, street railways, etc., Will Iams was the equal of the $100,000 that got for Axtell. Then the memorable panic of 1903 came along. The bottom dropped out of everything and Williams found himself on the verge of ruin. Independence was too small a town to support things of the magnitude which he had projected and there was nothing left to do but Republic as best he could and go elsewhere, which he did by locating in Galesburg, Ill.

Made Fortune With Allerton.

Allerton proved as great a sire as he was a trotter, other stallions were purchased and placed with him at the head of the Williams stud, and it became and has remained one of the largest and most successful, financially and otherwise, in the entire country. While its profits may not have equalled the $165,000 that Axtell realized, they have been large and have for the second time made Williams a man of independent substance.

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, SEPTEMBER 10, 1908

Mr. Bryan's Comment on Workingmen

It Doesn't Hurt the Workers, but It May Hurt Mr. Bryan

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

The facts published here were made public in a speech by W. R. Hearst on Labor Day at Davenport, Iowa.

In the Committee on Ways and Means William J. Bryan, then a member of Congress, investigated the demands of some American glass-workers, and commented on those demands in a rather peculiar way.

The Ways and Means Committee was considering the advisability of lowering the duty on glass and other articles imported into this country.

The glass-workers declared that the duty alone protected them in their wages—none too high. They said that to take off the duty, or reduce it considerably, would REDUCE THEIR WAGES TO THE LEVEL OF WAGES IN BELGIUM.

Mr. Bryan was rather impatient with the glass-workers, and he asked them why THEY should be better paid or work fewer hours than men in Belgium, and why they were not willing to COMPETE with Belgium workers.

He wound up by saying that the American workingmen demanding protection for their wages were "public beggars."

There is no doubt that those were the exact words used by Mr. Bryan. James Campbell, one of the glass-workers' committee, and Charles Bryant, another of the committee, state under oath that Bryan DID say that workmen demanding decent wages and different conditions from conditions in Belgium guaranteed by legislation were public beggars.

The fact that Mr. Bryan said this will probably not be denied. In any case, the fact remains a fact—MR. BRYAN DID SAY IT. His friends will probably try to explain it, or excuse it, saying that he was younger then, knew less, has changed since, etc.

The intelligent American workman, however, will not be very much interested in the denials, the quibbles or the explanations. He will read the affidavits of his fellow workmen, and he will draw his own conclusions as to what is PROBABLY THE REAL ATTITUDE OF MR. BRYAN TOWARD THE WORKMEN.

Every intelligent man knows that the politician asking for votes—the professional, talking politician—has two attitudes on a good many questions. He has what he considers the vote-getting attitude, which is his public attitude, and another private and REAL attitude.

Mr. Bryan's opinions about workingmen are, so far as he INDIVIDUALLY is concerned, not very important. The serious thing in his statement that workingmen asking for reasonable protection are "public beggars" is the fact that it reveals the real thought of a man seeking election to the presidency.

When those workmen came before him and demanded legislation to protect them and their families, THEY AND THEIR FELLOWS WERE ACTUALLY PAYING TO MR. BRYAN A SALARY OF FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS A YEAR, TRAVELING EXPENSES ALL THE WAY FROM LINCOLN, A SECRETARY'S SALARY, AND SO ON.

In other words, the working people and producers of the country were paying to the little, ignorant, country lawyer more money than he had ever dreamed of, more than he could possibly earn by actual work.

The workmen of America were paying Bryan $5,000 a year for himself, and his traveling expenses and a good allowance for clerical help. THEY WERE PAYING HIM THAT MONEY TO ACT AS THEIR REPRESENTATIVE AND TO PROTECT THEM, and when they went to him, as they had a perfect right to do, and told him that American workmen wanted protection against the vile conditions of labor in Europe,

Mr. Bryan called them public beggars!

The developed, inflated, office-seeking Mr. Bryan of to-day is, of course, mentally giving a very severe kicking to the frank outspoken, egotistical little lawyer of fifteen years ago.

Mr. Bryan, with his right hand in the air, his left hand in the air, and both feet in the air, if you choose, will take his solemn oath to-day that the voting workingman is NOT a public beggar.

The thing for workingmen to ask themselves is, WHAT DOES BRYAN REALLY THINK IN HIS OWN MIND? What has his training been? Isn't it likely that his REAL thought was revealed in those old days before he dreamed of being President? Is it safe to trust the newly-put-on enthusiasm for those that formerly appeared beggars in his eyes?

Workmen know only too well how many men there are of the Bryan type that look upon high wages for mechanics and other workers as outrageous.

Workingmen all over this country know how widely it is being said to-day that prosperity must be brought back BY LOWERING WAGES. There are a great many citizens, pretty good imitations of what Bryan was then, and is now, who think that the best way to resume dividends on watered stock is to cut wages.

It is for workmen to decide whether they will vote against the Bryan who actually did treat with contempt workmen that demanded fair legislative treatment, or whether they will now vote for the Bryan who needs them and is ready to swallow his words.

The average workman who reads this newspaper is a pretty intelligent individual; he can make up his own mind about human nature without our help.

It is our business to tell him what has actually HAPPENED. He will decide what action wisdom counsels. He will make up his own mind whether or not the peculiar hatred that many little men have for independent workers and high wages is a thing that is actually got rid of in a year or two, or whether it is a thing that sticks and crops out again and again.

When Mr. Bryan didn't especially need union men's votes, when he was simply a little, unknown lawyer Congressman from a country district, the union men asking for decent wages looked to him like a "public beggar."

He wants that man's vote now, and says that his opinion has changed. It is for workingmen to decide whether it really HAS changed.

Motherhood as a Calling

Ella Wheeler Wilcox Declares It Is Most Noble

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

IT is not so much what you are doing, my dear madam, before your child is born, as what you are thinking, which molds its character.

Over and over I would reiterate what I believe to be a great truth—children inherit the suppressed tendencies of their parents—those things of which the parents think and dream and long to do.

Therefore, cultivate your mind to dwell upon good and worthy and beautiful desires. Read tales of noble achievements and histories of great characters, and infuse all your thoughts with high aspirations.

A story comes to me from a personal friend who sings. Before the birth of her son she sang hours at a time day after day and week after week. Her voice was in excellent condition, and she gayly full vent to her song impulses.

The child cries at the sound of music and shows an evident distaste for it. He is nearly eight years old now, and cannot carry the simplest air. This is because the mother exhausted her own desire to sing during the expectant period.

Had she thought of music, listened to it and enjoyed it mentally and with the imagination it is more than probable that her child would have been musical. Mothers who exhaust their nervous systems in any line of endeavor do not bestow the ability to achieve in this same line upon their children.

The camera which receives the impression must be still.

If you would give your child certain qualities, learn to be still, to think and to feel strongly and earnestly.

Watch yourself that you do not indulge in disagreeable moods toward any one. Forgive your enemies and wish them well. Cast out bitterness and anger. You are no longer your own mistress, remember; you belong to your unborn child. Your responsibility is tremendous.

A woman who permitted her thoughts to dwell on vicious and dishonest themes sent two hundred criminals into the world in four generations.

So powerful was her concentration of vicious thought that she was like a poisoned spring, which sends out its death-dealing streams over the land.

Do not permit your eyes to rest upon deformity or ugliness for any length of time if you can avoid it. If you are compelled to be in its presence close your eyes and imagine beauty all about you.

When you fall asleep picture beautiful things in your mind and ask all good angels to guard you and your child.

Believe you are to bring a blessing into the world.

The expectant mother should avoid reading or thinking or talking about cruelty, sin, folly or sorrow. She should hear all the good music possible, look at beautiful pictures and objects in nature, and, if she desires her child to possess some one talent, let her read the lives of men and women who have been known in that especial work, and think much about them.

Much outdoor life and deep breathing of pure air will help to produce a robust child with strong lungs.

One hundred deep inhalations should be taken every morning with closed lips and the whole lungs filled with fresh air. During the daily promenade inhale while raking seven steps, and think of the seven most important qualities you would wish your child to possess, such as goodness, health, wisdom, talent, beauty, affection, influence.

With each breath believe you are inhaling one of these qualities from God's great reservoir for your child.

Then exhale slowly, and repeat the exercise until weary.

Avoid thinking of anyone you do not like, or dwelling on disagreeable or annoying events.

When depressed moods come, get out in the open air and begin your breathing exercises.

Think of all the noble and great people who have made the world better for living in it, and ask at your library for books about the great philanthropists and philosophers, poets, painters and artists.

Cultivate a reverent state of mind—look at the stars and realize how grand and glorious is this universe, and how wonderful the Creator who conceived and carried out the design. Worship Him with all your heart and remember that your child is a reflection of Him, and believe that you are to be the mother of one of God's own kin.

Thank Him hourly for the great privilege of motherhood, and let no worry or anxiety regarding the future depress you. Say, "I shall be taken care of—I am that most sacred thing on earth, an expectant mother—I am chosen by God for a great work—and all will be well with me."

If you keep in this frame of mind, all will be well with you and with your child.

Whoever was begotten by pure love,
And came desired and welcomed into life,
Is of immaculate conception.
